Boersma joins Mills Construction

Mills Construction Inc. welcomes Angela (Angie) Boersma as an Intern Architect in the Architectural Department under David Bertelson, AIA.

While assisting Mills Construction part-time with architecture, interior design, and project documentation, Boersma will continue with her role within the Department of Consumer Sciences at SDSU, working full-time as a lecturer for the interior design program, with responsibilities for student engagement and technology coordination.

Angela Boersma

Boersma works with Mills Construction part-time during the academic year, and full-time throughout the summer in order to fulfill the experience and testing requirements for becoming a registered architect a few years down the road.

She has a bachelor's degree in interior design from SDSU and a master of architecture from the University of Minnesota.

Her professional memberships include SDID, IDEC, EDRA, and Associate AIA. Mills Construction is energized to add Angie's skills and insight to their in-house design department, and excited to collaborate with SDSU in providing this opportunity for enhancing the credentials of one of their junior faculty members.
